

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, June 29.—During the last few years the popularity of the one piece frock for street wear has steadily increased and now such frocks in silk, in light weight wool, in linen and even in the thinner cottons are accepted as correct for such use where once they would have been considered odd and out of place. This new custom undoubtedly means increased comfort, for a coat and skirt costume with separate blouse, even when made of very light wool or of silk, is warmer than a frock of light material, but it is one that may easily be abused.

One objectionable feature of these frocks is the excessive shortness of the sleeves, often supplemented by extreme lowness at the throat, the in-extensive, ready made frocks being particularly prone to these foibles. Of course it is an easy matter to wear a kimpe with such a frock, a gumpie that will supply little undersleeves as we call chemisette or collar. Every one shows such gumpies in great appealing variety.

Collars, hand embroidered or ornamented by both hand embroidery and lace, have to a noticeable extent supplanted the frill collar on the latest frock frocks, the frill, though attractive, having been overdone. Often the collars do not meet in front, they extend only around to each side of the front, the space between being filled by one of the wide jabots. This gives a cut with a suggestion of narrowness at the throat, in place of the more familiar round or pointed ones, and many women to whom the latter types of collarless necklines, or rather low collar neck lines, are unbecoming, will find that this square line is kinder.

The slightly rolled collar with pointed front finish is gaining in favor and on simple tub frocks is both becoming and trim. One of the French models, these so-called Robespierre collars are frequently to be seen, and the collar running in straight lines from the base of the throat to some point on a line with it to the shoulder points is also liked. This kind of collar being usually associated with some sort of soft fichu or revers drapery or with front ties.

The transparent or semi-transparent gumpie with sleeves worn with a heavier blouse which is sleeveless is another practical for the hot weather, and, luckily, is once more in style. Most often, perhaps, it is in chiffon or net or other sheer stuff echoing the color of the frock, but one sees it too in sheer white or cream lingerie material associated with a jumper blouse of darker coloring. This sort of thing must be carefully handled if it is to have smartness, but when successful the arrangement is very fresh and pretty.

Some extremely good looking models are made up in black or very dark blue charmeuse or taffeta, and chiffon sleeves to match the frock, having an unlined air but really mounted on flesh colored tulle, may be provided for wear when the lingerie sleeves seem undesirable.

This is one way of getting around the discomfort of the modish long sleeves; and sometimes a close fitting cuff of silk or other frock material is used with a semi-transparent upper sleeve, which affords a little more coolness than the long sleeve entirely of the heavier material.

As midsummer approaches the short sleeve of course wins more and more favor, and the sleeves reaching left wide and open there with deep frills or wide turn-back cuff or wide, open undersleeves for finish are exceedingly cool and comfortable for hot weather wear; but, the long sleeve does have a chic and knowing air in the street frock, possibly because it is seldom seen in any well cut and original phase upon the cheap ready made frocks or blouses offered in the less discriminating shops.

Lingerie frocks worn under draped tunics of colored silk muslin or chiffon are being much worn in Paris and offer a practical suggestion for the doing over of last year's lingerie frock whose sheer bodice has lost its freshness. Lotus green, cerise, fuchsia, the brighter blues, all the gay colors of the season are effective in this connection, the white under their semi-transparent texture softening their tone becomingly. Some of the purples are particularly good under white.

White satin and white taffeta waists of the so-called shirt form have long sleeves with deep frills falling over the hand. The shoulders are cut very long, with the sleeves set in with a bound or piped edge at the armhole. The cut is the kimono form, for in spite of the fact that the sleeve sets in there is no shoulder seam. Buttoning down the front the directoire collar is formed first by a little upright standing band which extends three-quarters of the way around. To this is set a second collar which rolls loosely, falling in the characteristic point at the front and turning away to form the open rolling effect. Deep frills of plaited net are placed under the edge of the collar, making an attractive finish for the front of the waist.

The latest eccentricity or fashion is underwear decorated with a cross motive. The cross is made of lace or is embroidered by hand, and is placed on the front of the chemise or nightgown, exactly in the center. When lace insertion is used to make the cross, one piece is laid over the other and the fabric is buttonholed over the lace all the way around the edges and then clipped away. The Maltese cross, with four equal sides, is used.

Most economical are the yoke collars of embroidered mull and tucked or plaited point de'esprit and net, frilled with lace. They are wide enough to cover the shoulders and deep enough to reach below the bust in front and below the shoulder places in the back, so that no other trimming is necessary for the gown. Cuffs and sleeve frills are made to match.

Linen weaves appear quite heavy, almost resembling panama; in medium weight and again exquisitely sheer, calling for lace medallions and frothy little Valenciennes ruffles on the edge.

Small bows of black velvet give a decidedly chic touch to the lingerie gown. They dot the fichu or appear at intervals around the flounces; again they appear on sleeves instead of buttons, running from the wrist to the elbow on the under side of the sleeve.

Taffeta parasols of plain color carry floral and Persian borders, which for the most part are wide ribbon. The greatest assortment of color schemes prevails, from light, delicate shades to subdued shadowy tones, and to rich oriental colorings.

Exceptionally pretty is a parasol of white chiffon, printed in shaded pink roses, and lined with white mousseline de sole. One side of the parasol is decorated with a large butterfly of black chantilly lace. The edge is finished with a narrow band of black velvet ribbon.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR OLYMPIC

TEAMS REPRESENTING VARIOUS NATIONS GATHER IN STOCKHOLM.

Stockholm, June 29.—The stage is set and players assembled in readiness for the rise of the curtain for what promises to be the greatest exhibition of athletic prowess of strength and speed and skill the world has ever seen. Competitors from the four corners of the globe have gathered in Stockholm to take part in the Olympic games of 1912, which will be the fifth renewal of the great public games of the ancient Greeks since the Athens tournament of 1896 marked the revival of the events after an interval of more than 1,000 years.

Twenty-five countries have sent representatives to the tournament and the total number of contestants will exceed 2,000. Next to Sweden, which naturally leads in the number of entries, the countries having the largest numerical representation are Great Britain and the United States. The other countries that have entered fairly full teams are France, Germany, Russia, Hungary, Austria, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Canada, Bohemia, Holland, Italy, Australia and New Zealand. Other countries that will be represented in the athletic competitions and some of them in other events as well are Japan, Greece, Switzerland, Serbia, Turkey, Belgium, South Africa and Portugal.

Several preliminary competitions, including shooting and lawn tennis, were started today, but the real sport of the meet won't take place until a week hence, when the formal opening will be held and the first track and field games pulled off. A parade will feature the opening ceremonies. The representatives of the various countries will form into groups, divided according to the sports in which they are competing and will carry their national banners. The preparations are on a gigantic scale.

All of the visitors are loud in their praise of the perfection of the arrangements made by the Svenska Idrottsforbundet—to use the official title of the association which is in charge of the meet. Committees have been on hand to receive each arriving foreign delegation and nothing has been left undone that would contribute to the comfort or convenience of the visitors.

The stadium where the competitions are to be held is within easy access of the city. Seating accommodations have been provided for 40,000 spectators and it is estimated there will be standing room for an additional 25,000, but this probably will not be necessary. The grounds within the stadium provide several athletic tracks, a banked track for the cycle races, a cinder path for running and a turf track for hurdle racing.

The sports are to continue for a fortnight, and will occupy the morning and afternoon of each day. The order of the principal athletic competitions in which the United States and Great Britain are expected to figure most prominently is as follows:

July 6—Throwing the javelin; 10-

000-metre flat, trials; 100-meters trials; 800-meters flat, trials.

July 7—Running high jump, trials; 10,000-meters flat, final; 100-meters flat, final; 800-meters flat, final; Pentathlon.

July 8—Running high jump, final; standing broad jump, final; relay race, 400 meters, trials; relay race, 400 meters, final.

July 10—Pole vault, final; putting the shot, best hand, final; 200-meter flat, trials; 1,500-meters flat, final; 5,000-meters flat, final.

July 11—Putting the weight, right and left hand, final; 200-meters flat, final; 110-meters hurdle race, trials; 10,000-meters walking race, final.

July 12—Running broad jump, final; throwing the discus, best hand, final; 400-meter flat, final; team race, 300 meters, final.

July 13—Standing high jump, final; throwing the discus, right and left hand, final; 400-meters flat, final; team race, 3,000 meters, final.

July 14—Throwing the hammer, final; marathon race (40,200 meters) final; relay race, 1,400 meters, trials; Decathlon, first day.

July 15—Relay race 1,600 meters, final; cross country race, 8,000 meters; hop, step and jump, final; Decathlon, second day.

The metric system of measurement is used by the Olympic committee for all distances in the games at Stockholm. For the convenience of readers the following tables of distances is given:

100-meter run	109.3 yards
200-meter run	218.6 yards
400-meter run	437.2 yards
800-meter run	874.4 yards
1,500-meter run	1,639.5 yards
110-meter hurdle	129.2 yards
400-meter hurdle	437.2 yards

KNEW PREMIERS OF LONG AGO

London, June 29.—Few men of today possess a greater fund of interesting personal recollections of English public life than Sir Francis S. Powell, who today celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday. Sir Francis entered parliament in 1863, when Palmerston was premier and he enjoyed a more or less intimate acquaintance with the Earl of Derby, Lord John Russell, William E. Gladstone, Lord Deaconsfields and their successors in the premiership. Acting on his belief that the man who stays too long in public life makes a mistake, Sir Francis voluntarily retired from parliament several years ago. He declares that both Palmerston and Gladstone would have left greater reputations behind them had they not stayed too long in parliament.

MOTHERHOOD SUGGESTIONS

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism untrained for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
